The Greek Times

Troublesome Trojan Prince has swiped stunning Queen!

Citizens are shocked at this new and unexpected event when Prince Paris and Queen Helen abruptly absconded taking with them all of Mad Menelaus's treasure.

They are currently enjoying an exciting vacation, forgetting the trouble that they have left behind.

Mad Menelaus.

Red haired, King Menelaus of Sparta, Helen's husband, has been seen furiously raging that Paris has captivated Helen. We have heard that he is assembling an army to take Hypnotic Helen back to Menelaus.

Are We Expecting War?

Citizens fear that we are on the brink of war and that Troy will feel the powerful might of Greece as we step into battle!

Treacherous Trojan Prince steals Spartan's Spouse

Reports are coming in that Paris, Prince of Troy, has absconded with Helen, the wife of Menelaus, King of Sparta. The handsome Trojan was in Sparta on official business of his father, King Priam. Unnamed sources state the two met at an official dinner and immediately were smitten.

The two fled Sparta with a large part of the King's fortune when he had to leave the city on urgent business. Local fisherman have reported sighting them on various different islands but no-one knows where they are holed up currently. The speculation is that they are returning to Troy.

King Menelaus, on discovering the news, visited High King Agamemnon to demand immediate action. Menelaus has declared Sparta is at war with Troy and the aggrieved King is readying an army and a fleet to sail to Troy and bring Helen back. There has been no official word from the Trojan King.
